The Highland Conservancy started one year ago when concerned Highland citizens decided it was time to preserve our rural character, natural areas and open spaces before they were gobbled up by development. With the support of Oakland Land Conservancy, the Nature Conservancy and other conservation groups, we have been working to identify land for various levels of protection and conservation. A key focus is to connect existing parks and open spaces to provide interconnected habitat for wildlife. Another goal is to connect multi use trails. People move to Highland because of its meandering rivers, lakes, parks, woodlands and open fields. Our goal is to preserve this natural beauty for future generations to enjoy.

Some of our current initiatives include:

- Facilitating the development of conservation easements, corridors and green spaces in Highland.
- Educate the public on preservation and care of Highland's fragile resources.
- Partner with other conservancies and organizations to create interconnected parks, trails and greenways.
- Partner with neighborhood associations to preserve and protect their common open spaces.
- Work with developers and the township to create guidelines for protecting land and habitats.

- Assist in the stewardship of land held in conservancy.
- Work with Highland Township to develop a conservation plan that is linked with other compatible uses such as parks, recreation, trails and equestrian needs.
- Preserve vanishing habitat for plants and wildlife.

A small committed group of citizens has been working to achieve these and other goals. We could use your help in continuing this important work.

"Each of us has a responsibility to be good stewards of our environment. Highland Township's Conservancy is a great way to fulfill that responsibility." —Triscia Pilchowski, Highland Township Supervisor

Upscale Senior Citizen Complex Proposed for Highland

Among other large parcels in Highland threatened with development, 120 acres of beautiful, rolling open land is now being considered for an upscale senior citizen complex. The proposed development would be located on Hickory Ridge just north of M59, behind Jay Chevrolet and bordering the Dunham Lake subdivision. Property owner Cleve King has proposed building six story high rise buildings for seniors, along with assisted living facilities and other amenities for the 2,500 residents, including a golf course. With entrance deposits of over $200,000 and high monthly fees, this will not be affordable for everyone.

Concerned Highland citizens can attend the June 2nd Planning Commission informational meeting for more details.

"I think an upscale equestrian gated community like you see in California would be a much better fit with our community" says Highland resident Katheryn Krupa. "We need to protect the rural character of Highland and high density, high rise development is not what we need."

Vital Connections for Wildlife Adapted from Observer Eccentric article

When we think about the protection of high-quality natural areas and the wildlife they support, we usually think of large parcels of land. It's true the wildlife we love need plenty of elbow-room to thrive, but another way wildlife can be encouraged to stick around is through the concept of corridors.

As fragmentation of open land continues at a frantic pace, wildlife, whose ranges often exceed boundaries of protected open space, need ways of getting from one protected area to another. Some possibilities for establishing connected corridors include pipeline and electrical easements, trailways, greenbelts, parkways, and conservation easements to link large undeveloped parcels. River corridors, where well-vegetated buffers line the riverbanks, offer corridors for a wide variety of wildlife, including fish. Marshes and fens act as buffers to filter out pollutants from the water and prevent erosion. Abandoned railroad beds harbor native plants that haven't been seen in years in other places. So what can we do? Many townships in Oakland County have been working to link up trails into a nationwide trail network. Even those who live on small parcels or lots can be involved in preserving wildlife habitat simply by not cutting down trees, planting native plants and hedgerows, or limiting fertilizer on lawns bordering lakes and streams. Log onto our website for more ideas on what you can do to help.

Woodlands and connected green spaces are important for all wildlife.

learn about during the hike.

One Sunday per month over the summer and fall we will explore and learn more about our township, meeting new friends at the same time. We'll end the season with a cookout and bonfire.
